CHAPTER I.

"I was taken sick a year ago with bilious fever."

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I could not move!"

I shrank!

From the 1st to the 12th I had been doctoring for my liver, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned. My pains left me, my entire system felt as if it were new, and I was as sound as a sovereign but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life.

R. FITZPATRICK.
Dublin, June 6, '81.

CHAPTER II.

"When, Nov. 1, 1880, Gentlemen, I suffered with attacks of sick headache, Neuralgia, female trouble, for years, in the most terrible and excruciating manner."

"No medicine or doctor could give me relief or comfort until I used Hop Bitters."

"The first bottle nearly cured me."

"The second made me as well and strong as when a child."

"And I have been so to this day."

"My husband was an invalid for twenty years with a serious and urinary complaint."

"Prescribed by Boston's best physicians."

"Unbearable!"

"Seven bottles of your bitters cured him and I know of the."

"Live of eight persons."

"In my neighborhood that have been saved by your bitters."

"And many more using them with great benefit."

"They almost do miracles!"

—Mrs. E. D. Stark.

How to get sick—Expose yourself day and night; eat too much without exercise; work too hard without rest; doctor all the time; take all the vile nostrums advertised; and then you will want to know how to get well, which is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters!

A Chapter of Them From the Northern Country.

LOGAN, Dec. 4th, 1884.

To the Editor of THE HERALD.

A man named Wm. Lundy, living at Rexburg, Snake River Valley, about 200 miles north of here, on Friday, November 21st, brought down an old rupture by heavy lifting. After several unsuccessful attempts by himself to reduce it, several neighbors, who had had a little experience, also made several attempts, but without effect. The man was rapidly sinking with persistent vomiting. They concluded it was necessary to send for a surgeon. Dr. Ormsby was immediately telegraphed for. He left here at 12:30 the night of the 23rd, arriving at Rexburg at noon the next day. He found the patient in a very critical condition. He etherized him and endeavored to reduce the rupture; failing to do so he proceeded to operate. Parts were found in such a diseased condition due to strangulation, that he had very little hopes of his recovery. Dr. Ormsby received a letter yesterday, stating that the patient was doing well and that the indications were quite favorable for his recovery. The percentage of recovery in such cases being quite small, this one is worthy of mention.

A few days ago, a runaway took place that might have resulted fatally. A young man, named Newell Whitney, rode over to Collinston station to see a friend. He was anxious to show how his horse could trot, so they hitched him to a buggy. After trotting his horse and being satisfied he could trot pretty well, he started him up to show his running qualities. The horse became unmanageable and started down a hill. Whitney dropped one of the lines and grabbed the other with both hands in order to run him up the side hill. In doing this the side band of the bridle broke, leaving the horse perfectly free, and he continued down the slope, finally upsetting the buggy, throwing Whitney out and inflicting a very bad scalp wound. The cut was about six inches long, in a zig-zag shape, and it required about fifteen stitches to sew it up. Dr. Ormsby was telegraphed for, but was out of town. Mr. Whitney was brought to Logan the next day and attended to by Mr. Ben Riter, who made a very successful job of sewing the wound. At 11 o'clock the young man's head was so badly swollen that he was unable to see. His companion who was in the buggy at the same time was more fortunate, as he fell into the buggy top, and although dragged some distance, was finally released from his perilous position, having sustained only a few bruises.

At Paradise, a few days ago, a boy about 14 years old, named H. Jackson, met with a very serious accident while hauling wood. In coming down the canyon he fell off his horse, the wagon passing over his thigh and crushing it very badly. He rode down the canyon about two miles, suffering the most intense pain, when he met a load of hay, which turned around and took him home. Dr. Ormsby was sent for, but not yet having returned from the north, Mr. Riter went out and did what he could to relieve the sufferings of the unfortunate. That evening, Dr. Ormsby went out and set the limb. At last accounts the boy was doing well.

The people are very much pleased with the change of time on the Utah & Northern, as they can read their Salt Lake papers the same day they are issued. More anon.

Yours respectfully, E.

A PRACTICAL JOKE.

One that is Hard to Beat for Unadulterated Cussedness.

Mr. Henry M. Phelps, an employee of the Utah & Northern Railway, at Logan, was the victim of a practical joke, on Friday last, which, for unadulterated cussedness, would be hard to beat. Mr. Phelps fought in the Union army, during the civil war, and received several wounds for which he justly considers himself entitled to a pension. For some years he has been trying to secure an acknowledgment of his claim, and, for that purpose, has been corresponding with some pension attorneys at Washington. The letters received by Mr. Phelps have all been of a most assuring nature, and have been the source of much joy to their recipient, who has shared it freely, with all who came in contact with him. The result is that the features of the case have been freely discussed by all classes of employees, and many and varied are the tricks that have been played on Mr. Phelps through the medium of the expected pension. Lately, the letters from his attorneys in Washington have contained more than the usual amount of taffy and Mr. Phelps has been pouring the story of his joy into all ears, willing or otherwise.

On the day mentioned he was very happy and his happiness became hilarity when he received a regularly filled notice requesting him to apply at Washington. The letters received by Mr. Phelps were suddenly dismissed as a thought entirely too base for one of his companions to indulge in. He dropped his work and started on the run for a horse that was standing near by. Even then the thought that the horse was not his did not appear to prevent itself; but he reined, he applied whip and heels and soon was off at a flying pace. For the time being he was a magnate. As he flew up the street, the breeze brought back the words: "Free beer," "Railroad dance," and similar ejaculations. But when he arrived at the postoffice, and was informed that there was no letter for him, valuable or otherwise, his excitement was a different nature. He demanded a letter and introduced the note he had received as a reason why he should have one. The clerk assured him that the note had not been issued from the postoffice, and in proof, called in several individuals to compare his handwriting with that on the notice. Of course there was no similarity; but the victim still wanted a valuable letter. He begged and pleaded for a letter, but to no purpose. He then cursed and swore a little, but this had no effect on the calloused clerk. Gradually, but with frightful force the truth dawned upon him, and then he was mad. He remounted the horse, and started back, leaving a streak of profanity in his wake. Arrived at the depot he gave expression to his grief, rage, and disappointment in many more ways. His suspicions rested on some one, but, as usual, the suspected party was entirely innocent of any knowledge of the affair, and resented with indignation the abuse that was heaped upon him. Then Mr. Phelps wept, cursed, and subsided by turns, and furnished lots of amusement to the real but unsuspected author of the joke. But his grief was not to end here, for he had to make amends to the owner of the horse for the liberty he had taken, and he narrowly escaped losing his situation for the breach of discipline. However, Mr. Phelps' claim is undoubtedly a good one, and it may not be many days before the laugh will be all on the other side.

LOGAN, December 7th, 1884.

FORT DOUGLAS JOTTINGS

SERVICES AS usual, were held on Sabbath evening by the Reverend Dr. Jackson.

THE DIFFERENT companies were thoroughly inspected on Sunday morning last, at 8 o'clock.

CONSIDERING the changeable weather, the hospital has but few occupants and the health of the command is excellent.

THE Post Adjutant, Lieutenant George B. Walker, has returned and is now performing the duties of his office.

THE GENTLEMANLY police sergeant of the Post reports business pushing in the coal and wood line. "We must have warm fires during this weather."

SHOW UP on Saturday evening and night to the depth of two or three inches. The weather was chilly and the sentry wishes for a soft, downy coon on which to rest his worried frame.

THE POSTERS announcing Leavitt's Minstrels are hanging quite conspicuously in the barrack room, and we expect quite a number will avail themselves of this opportunity to "laugh and grow fat" at the witcrafts of this justly noted combination.

OWING to the inclement weather, Sunday morning, guard was mounted at the "bull" (guard house) without ceremony and with dispatch, the officer of the day being Lieut. Welcher, and Lieut. Turner, officer of the guard.

HUNTING PARTIES will now be formed, and as the boys are very desirous to bring home deer and other game, we anticipate rare sport. We have good marksmen in the Sixth, as can be noticed by the many target buttons worn on the collars of the men.

LIEUTENANT Beckwith, appointed from Montana civil life, reported on the 6th inst., and was ordered to report to "A" company for duty, see Lieutenant Burham, who reports to his own company, "D." The boys of "D" gladly greet back their gallant young officer.

WE had confidently expected to chronicle the fact that Prof. J. A. Cushing, chief musician and acting leader of the Sixth Infantry Regimental Band, had been promoted to the position his superior merits as an instructor and leader entitle him. But it has been decreed otherwise, and a band leader has reported and taken charge of the musical force. During Prof. Cushing's management, the band has prospered beyond measure and he has given unbounded satisfaction, at the post and in the city. He is a perfect gentleman and we predict for him speedy promotion, as his qualifications are of too high an order to be passed by unnoticed.

PAROWAN ITEMS.

Correspondence of THE HERALD.

THE PEOPLE at this place are moving about pretty, the city is in a flourishing condition.

Z. C. M. L. is doing well under the able management of Morgan Richards, Jr., paying 20 per cent. dividends.

THE PAROWAN Sheep-raising and Stock company are all on an excellent paying basis.

THE FARMERS have been able to do their fall work through having such delightful weather, and better times are prevalent everywhere.

This morning a fire broke out in the Co-op. store, but by prompt action, only about $50 is the loss.

Success to the Parowan people.

"As Good as New."

are the words used by a lady, who was at one time given up by the most eminent physicians, and left to die. Reduced to a mere skeleton, pale and haggard, not able to leave her bed, from all kinds of humors, always itching, acts as a positive, gives instant relief. Prepared only for piles, itching of the private parts, nothing else. Hon. J. M.
